

The Fox and the Cat by Sergi Bonilla

A Fox was boasting to a Cat of its clever devices for escaping its enemies. The Fox said that he had a whole bag of tricks which contains a hundred ways of escaping his enemies. The Cat said that he had only one, but he could generally manage with that

Just at that moment they heard the cry of a pack of hounds coming towards them, and the Cat immediately scampered up a tree and hid herself in the boughs.

"This is my plan," said the Cat. "What are you going to do?"

The Fox thought first of one way, then of another, and while he was debating the hounds came nearer and nearer, and at last the Fox in his confusion was caught up by the hounds and soon killed by the huntsmen. And then the cat thought:

"Better one safe way than a hundred on which you cannot reckon."